The Veep star will be co-starring with Patricia Clarkson in the indie comedy The Husbands, about a blue-collar woman who comes home to find a new man in her house and, at the same time, her husband in the hospital. The film will be directed by Alex Flinn, a longtime friend of Clarkson and Louis-Dreyfus. The actress also produced the film with her and Clarkson's Wedding Films production company, which has since been disbanded. The project marks Louis-Dreyfus's first starring role in an independent film, as well as a role opposite a co-star that's completely different from what she's known for in comedic roles on The New Adventures of Old Christine and Seinfeld. "In a way, I almost feel like this is a bit of a cheat — to be doing a dramatic role and then playing myself in another dramatic role," Louis-Dreyfus told THR. "There is so much I love about Patricia Clarkson, but I am a fan of hers on a lot of other shows. I'm a huge Patricia Clarkson fan, but it's always good to get out of your comfort zone." Louis-Dreyfus is repped by UTA, IAG and 3 Arts. Clarkson is repped by WME, Mosaic and attorney Adam Kaller. Flinn is repped by Industry Entertainment and attorney Eric Smith. 2edc1e01e8

I can easily convert a small subset (1k rows) to JSON using the python library jsonpickle. What is the best way to do this for the entire file? A: To do this in python you could:

#!/usr/bin/env python3
import csv
import json
import sys
import os
#Read in all your data with open(sys.argv[1], 'rb') as in_file:
reader = csv.reader(in_file, delimiter=' ')
data = [dict(row) for row in reader]
#Remove the ' ' from the data
json_output = ""
join([str(x) for x in data])
#Convert the data to json with open(sys.argv[1]+".json", "w") as out_file:
json.dump(data, out_file)
This will parse through your csv file, and remove the for each row, then write out a json file.
